BETTER TRACK AND RACING

JUAREZ GOING BACK TO NORMAL AND THE HORSES SHOWING MORE SPEED.

Othello Wins the Sprint Handicap in a Canter—Bank and Tillotson Drop Out of the Maiden Class—Many Arrivals.

El Paso, Tex., December 10.—The Juarez track was back to its normally fast condition today and there was a corresponding improvement in the racing. A handicap at three-quarters of a mile had the place of honor on the program and was contested by a small but select band of sprinters. It resulted in the easiest kind of a victory for Jefferson Livingston's Othello, which outclassed his opposition and had no trouble in making the weight concessions demanded of him. He had a margin of several lengths at all times and just cantered along in front to win his rider pleased. Brookfield came at the end with a rush to dispose of Carrie Orme for second money.

The allowance race for two-year-olds with which the afternoon's proceedings began enabled Bank to graduate from the maiden class. Bank had raced disappointingly in two preceding starts, but was again backed with confidence as the favorite of the race. He won in a way that left no doubt of his superiority. He'll be second and Circulate, which had easily beaten Bank when he last started, was third.

Another maiden was successful in the second race, when Tillotson got home in advance of a mediocre band, with High Street and Katharine G. in closest attendance.

Eastman never gave his backers the least bit of concern in the third, for he made every post a winning one with a goodly margin at all points. Henry Walbank and Petit Bleu were in closest pursuit from start to finish.

The fifth produced a rattling good finish between Delaney and Oldsmobile. The former set the pace and held a lead of several lengths at one part of the running, but was tiring at the end and succeeded in beating Oldsmobile only by a neck. Curlicue made good for the talent in the closing dash, although hard pressed at the finish by Marjorie D. The latter might have won but for becoming involved in several jams in the early racing.

The following arrivals and horses are among the latest arrivals: Jacobson with Barsac, Northern Light and Morty; C. Freeman with Durin, Rosemary, Tactless and Jolly Tar; L. W. Haymaker with Bird Man, Stentor and Bat Masterson; George Miller with El Mahdi; M. S. Martin with Judge Sale, J. D. Hayes, Dr. Mack and Dr. Mack II.; M. Morris with Little Maid; W. H. Webb with Oklahoma Boy; J. Wecker with Eliza Page; S. G. Brooks with Wild Irish, Oklahoma Irish, Libellula and Senorita Dana; R. McCoy with Florin, Linbrook and Tommie Colman.

Jockey Graves came with the Jacobson stable, for which he will ride here.

A peculiar characteristic of the new top dressing of the track is that it absorbs water like a sponge and remains damp underneath while the surface appears dry.

THE KIND OF A HORSE ST. SIMON WAS.

He was bred by Prince Batthyany, but never carried the handsome and popular green jacket, for the prince dropped dead on the Jockey Club steps while awaiting the start for the Two Thousand Guineas, in which Galliard, also a son of the great horse Galopin, was concerned, and the excitement was too much for him. St. Simon at the time was a two-year-old and had not yet run in public. With the rest of the prince's horses, among them Fulmen, which fetched 5,000 guineas and ultimately won the Lincolnshire Handicap for Mr. R. C. Naylor, of Macaroni fame, St. Simon was sent up for sale during the first July meeting and after a spirited bidding between Matthew Dawson and Sir J. Blundell Maple he was knocked down to the former, acting on behalf of the Duke of Portland, for 1,600 guineas, the cheapest horse, as it turned out, ever sold, and presumably Matthew had been advised as to his merit by his brother John, who had trained him up to that time. The duke then chief adviser to Sir Blundell Maple tried hard to persuade him to go on, but failed, and he only regretted it once and that was ever afterward.

All his engagements becoming void, fresh liabilities had to be incurred and the duke, a new comer on the turf, struck a tremendous vein of luck straightaway, but he never had a horse to compare with "the First" Ayrshire, Honoran, Macool, Senorita, Amiable, Mrs. Butterwick and La Roche notwithstanding. St. Simon made his first appearance at Godwood, where, backed against the field, he simply romped away with the Halmaker Stakes, and on the following day won a Maiden Plate with equal ease. Next he came out for the Devonshire Nursery, over which duly meeting and after a spirited bidding between Archer and the jockey, but a horse of that name—for "the Thuman" was on St. Simon, which gave him 17 pounds and a hollow beating. With 126 pounds on his back he started at 11 to 8 in a field of twenty-one for the mile Prince of Wales Nursery at Doncaster and came home alone eight lengths in front of his stable companion, Lambic, and if there had been any lingering doubt as to his super-excellence it was effectively dispelled by this extraordinary performance. The Duke of Westminster had a good two-year-old at the time in Duke of Richmond, known as Bushey when he won the Richmond Stakes at Godwood, after which he was renamed. A really sporting match was made between the two for a "monkey" aside, Brothly Stakes Course, but the odds laid on St. Simon were never in doubt and he again won in a canter, though by three-quarters of a length only. He retired to winter quarters acknowledged as the best two-year-old of the year.

It is safe to assert that Scot Free would not have won the Two Thousand Guineas. Harvester would not have divided the Derby with St. Gatien, nor would Lambkin have won the St. Leger had he been on the stage in either scene. After a public trial with Tristan, St. Simon was allowed to walk over for the Epsom Gold Cup, and the wisdom of abstention was proved shortly afterwards when, carrying two pounds overweight, he sailed home twenty lengths in front of Mr. Lefevre's good horse for the Ascot Cup. This was as fine a performance as ever was seen for the royal trophy, and its merit was enhanced when on the following day Tristan easily accounted for Waterford, Harvester and Quicklime for the Hardwicke Stakes, a race which the son of Hermit won three years in succession. St. Simon travelled all the way to Newcastle to lose Chislehurst in a single-handed bout for the Gosforth Gold Cup, and his remarkable racing career terminated with another striking performance when he finished twenty lengths in advance of the St. Leger winner, Ossian, for the Goodwood Cup. Yes, he was a phenomenal horse, and he would be a bold man who would declare a preference for him or Ormonde as far as racing merit was concerned. In appearance the two champions presented a striking contrast,

EARNINGS OF THE STABLE OF A TURFMAN WHO MAY FIGURE IMPORTANTLY IN RACING

In the racing of 1914 the horses running in the colors of G. A. Cochran won a total of $5,505. This year they more than tripled that sum. Something of a newcomer to the turf, Mr. Cochran's stable was mostly one of two-year-olds and, having bought many well-bred yearlings, it is evident that he is bent on widening his standing as an owner with a well-equipped stable of young horses. His best winner this year was the fast Sainilly, Pielone, and a good one she was. The Disguise colt, Prince of Como, showed more than average excellence in his racing, while Feminist and Hands Off held out hope for the future. The four-year-old, Figniny, and the three-year-old, Royal Martyr, were the patriarchs of his stable and are at least good enough to serve as schoolmasters for his youngsters. His stable record was:

IMPROVED STABLE RECEIPTS REAPED BY THE HORSES OF A LOUISVILLE TURFMAN

George J. Long's older horses of 1915 were not of much account in racing and it was reserved for his two-year-olds to earn for his stable such measure of success as fell to its portion. In view of the fact that his stable earnings were almost double of those of 1914, it is probable that he was not discontented with what his youngsters did for him, albeit there was no star in their number. Rochester, Black Beauty, Kathleen and Dolina, between them, accounted for the bulk of the total won, Raoul being the only other that won as much as $1,000. The master of Bashford Manor has been accustomed to having good horses of his own breeding in action and it is about time for him to introduce another like Free Lance. It would be pleasant to see something of the kind occur in 1916. The stable record was as follows:

Horse.	Col. and Sex.	A.	Pedigree.	1st.	2d.	3d.	Won.

for although both stood over sixteen hands. St. Simon, which was by Galopin like all the breed showed the perfection of quality, while Ormonde was a horse of massive frame, with abnormal power behind the saddle up to 225 pounds with hounds. As regards their careers at the stud there was no comparison, for whereas the Bend Or horse made but one big hit, with Orme out of Angelica, St. Simon was responsible for a triple crown in the Diamond Jubilee, a Two Thousand Guineas winner in St. Frusquin, heroines of the One Thousand Guineas in Seminola, La Fleche, Amiable and Winifreda, Blue Riband champions in the brothers Persimmon and Diamond Jubilee, both of which won the St. Leger, as did also his daughters, Memoir and La Fleche, after winning the Oaks, in which race Mrs. Butlerwick, Amiable and La Roche were all three successful. Scores of other winners and sires and dams of winners sprang from his loins; in fact, he was the most famous horse ever known at the stud and his blood is distributed and celebrated in every corner of the globe. SCOPE OF FRENCH RACING NEXT YEAR.

That permission for the resumption of racing in the south of France has been given by the ruling governmental authority, has been made public in this country. It is also expected that, unless some great disaster befalls the French army, racing is to be allowed over the great Paris track. Concerning the whole matter, the regular Paris correspondent of London Sportsman wrote recently: "Though many French politicians thought it was inconsistent to hold race meetings while the country was invaded by a relentless foe for the government, which does not take its watchword from any religious body or panders to the sentimentality of any kill-joy, has acted on the warnings of M. Edmond Blanc, president of the French Breeders' Syndicate, and averted the ruin threatened by the cessation of a favorite sport and the complete disorganization of a once prosperous national industry. In this country men in office consult none of the smug-faced fellows whose conscientious scruples revolt against the joys and amusements of the public. Had France not been under the heel of the Prussian we should have had racing long ago in this country, and we cannot understand the restrictions which have been placed on racing in England when a further confirmation of the understanding between the two countries could have been given by a continuation of racing instead of a partial resumption in the home of racing and sport. The question has been comparatively solved in France, for M. Camille Blanc, president of the Nice Race Association, is in close touch with his colleague of the Lombardy Jockey Club, so that it appears certain that next spring we shall be invited to the re-opening of the Nice meeting on the course washed by the waters of the Var, where, if memory serves aright, Babilius took his first swimming lesson and saved the 'book' of his owners. We are told that there is every probability of a Paris racing season in 1916 under the auspices of the Societe d'Encouragement, and should this hope be realized we may look forward to a complete resumption of sport, a consummation devoutly to be wished, for breeders and owners have been called on to make inordinate sacrifices owing to the duration of the war.

"The pleasant news of the resumption of racing has been confirmed by those who have interviewed the Minister of Agriculture, M. Meline, while Mr. Hennessy, the owner of Luttre, deserves honorable mention for the zeal he has shown in bringing about relief to those who were contemplating a general liquidation of their studs and 'cutting' their losses. M. Camille Blanc has been interviewed by the leading Nice journal, the 'Eclair', and has explained in detail the endeavors made to re-open race courses, which, according to French Rules, are not the object of any speculation, but simply ordained for the purpose of determining the value of horses for the stud. He has placed the question before the municipality of Nice, and narrated in detail the recent conversation between himself, as president of the Societe d'Encouragement, and Count Turati, who holds the same office with the Milan Jockey Club. Count Turati has expressed, on behalf of his colleagues, an intention to participate in the international gathering at Nice, while the French stables at Chantilly and Maisons-Laffitte are making every preparation for an event worthy of being marked with a white stone. Notwithstanding the hard times prevailing in France and the extensive calls on the financial resources of the town of Nice through the numerous wounded who have been sent to recuperate in the south, the city council has placed the sum of $5,000 at the disposal of the Race Society, which increases to $25,000 the added money for distribution during the cross-country gatherings in January and February next. Racing will take place on Sunday and Thursday, and at the commencement of the flat racing season fixed for March 15 a second series of meetings will be held on the flat, subject to the conventions which may be agreed on to give sport at Nice a widely international character."

DARLEY DALE WINNING RECOGNITION.

Now that the once numerous band of sons of St. Simon at the stud is annually growing smaller it is interesting to note that the stock of the returned exile, Darley Dale (which came back to this country in 1914) won many races this year in Russia. In the early part of the year six of his get among them accounted for twenty-three races of a total value of 5,300 pounds. Three of these winners were brothers and sister, all being out of one mare, Mosquee, and as the youngest of the three is a three-year-old, it is proof that their sire's stock train on. Darley Dale is a much travelled stallion, for in his early days he stood in France and thence migrated to Russia, to go back again three or four years ago, to France before returning to his native land. Even now he is only fourteen. His chief winner in Russia this year is the five-year-old horse Demosthenes (six races value 3,500 sovereigns). As a three-year-old Demosthenes won the Russian Derby in a trot for the late M. Lazareff, who bred him out of Mosquee, a daughter of Masque out of a Retreat mare. Himself a winner of the Eclipse Stakes, Darley Dale's breeding is most interesting, for to combine with St. Simon in the upper half of his pedigree his dam, Ismay, brings in the stout blood of Isomony. In conjunction with that of Hermit and Adelaide, by Young Melbourne, he traces back in the female line to rare old Maid of Mashman (grandam of Peter).—London Sportsman.

IT WAS PARKINSON YEAR IN IRELAND.

Features of the Irish racing season just closed that are noted by a Dublin commentator are the outstanding records of J. J. Parkinson and his son, Mr. W. J. Parkinson. The former, in his capacity of owner, has won fifty-one races, which is more than any other owner; as trainer he has 102 races to his credit, a new record for Ireland, while, again as a trainer, he has had fifty-three sweepstakes, a number considerably in excess of the winning charges of any of his colleagues. Then, his son, with seventy-three winning rides, has not alone come out at the top of the poll amongst the horse-men, but in recording that fine score has left behind the late achievement of the late John Thompson, who in 1907 piloted fifty-three winners, a record which has stood until now.

WEST AUSTRALIAN REGULATIONS.

The report of the joint committee of the two Houses of Parliament in West Australia on the regulation of racing in that state includes a recommendation that three-quarters should be the minimum distance for two-year-old stakes, and that there should be at least one mile and a quarter race for older horses at each meeting. All street betting is to be prohibited and all bookmakers on race courses, only the totalizator being legalized. It is also recommended that the sweeps conducted in Tasmania be barred from doing business in West Australia, which is to have six sweeps of its own on racing events, the yearly profits to be devoted to improving the breed of horses, by subsidizing sires and increasing the values of purses.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

J. W. L. Great Falls, Mont. Luke McLuke ran one and three-eighths miles in 2:20 in winning the Belmont Stakes of 1914 at Belmont Park.

J. L. L. Indianapolis, Ind. In racing the term a length actually means the length of a horse, but is conventionally treated as being about ten feet.

ABOUT READY FOR ACTION

NEARLY ALL THE HORSES EXPECTED AT NEW ORLEANS NOW GATHERED THERE.

Ed Crump Temporarily Out of Training Because of a Slight Injury—Short Grass Blistered and Retired for a Time Also.

New Orleans, La., December 10.—Many more turfmen and followers of the sport have joined the racing colony here during the past few days. They include some noted layers who prefer basking in the sunshine here rather than facing the rigors of winter in the north. Only a few stables remain to come here, the more pretensions absentees being the strings of Dr. J. S. Tyree and R. F. Carman. Both sent word that they would ship their horses here early next week. Accommodations have also been found for sixteen yearlings that H. O. Constock will bring from California. There will be about 150 two-year-olds at the Fair Grounds for the racing for that age.

Ed Crump, the star of J. W. Schorr's stable, is temporarily out of training, due to having picked up a nail shortly after his arrival. It was feared for a time that the mishap might be attended with serious effects, but no complications resulted and he will be in good condition again shortly, according to trainer John F. Schorr.

Another crack that is out of commission for the present is Emil Herz's English-bred Short Grass. He had a strong blister applied to his forelegs and will be in retirement for a while.

Some of the racing crowd now here will depart tomorrow by steamer for Havana to be in attendance at the opening of Oriental Park. Among those who will go to the Cuban capital are James Arthur and Hart Derrham.

C. R. Ellison arrived today and will remain until after the racing ends.

NEW YORK OPINION OF THE NEW RULE.

New York, December 10.—Among horsemen wintering in New York the opinion is almost unanimous, that the new two-year-old rule passed by the Jockey Club yesterday will aid the improvement of the thoroughbred. The only objections come from the ranks of owners having what are regarded as cheap horses in January and which later develop into good horses.

"It will give us no chance to sell them if they should happen to turn out desirable racers," said one man.

Frank J. Bryan could think of only two horses that had lived up to their January form, May Hempstead and Horace E., out of the thousands started, some of which might have proved exceptionally good, had their usefulness not been hampered by early racing. "There is no telling how many good horses have been ruined by early racing," said Mr. Bryan. "The new rule will certainly do some good."

Mr. Bryan's sentiments were identical with those of many others. The rule will not stop two-year-old racing on winter tracks, but it will tend to make an owner think twice, before entering a horse which gives promise of better things, at a winter meeting. In other words it will cause owners to defer showing what is presumably their best juveniles, before April of each year after 1916. Capt. E. Cassatt made a public statement after his suggestion had been adopted. "I am looking for improvement in the breeding of horses in this country," said he, "and I am willing to spend time and money to assist in producing the best horses in the world. I firmly believe this new addition to the rules will bring about good results. I sincerely hope so, anyhow. One thing is positive it cannot do harm."

THINKS RULEMAKERS ARE ON WRONG TRACK.

A new rule relative to the bidding up of selling race winners will be put into effect at the Fair Grounds beginning with the opening of the racing season, says a New Orleans correspondent. Instead of offering the winner by auction immediately after the race, sealed bids, accompanied by the amount bid, will be taken by the clerk of the scales until fifteen minutes after the finish of the race. In the event of a bid being made, the owner will be notified of the amount bid and he will have the privilege of advancing it by $5 to retain his horse. This change in the old procedure, like most other suggested amendments, seems to be based on the principle that the bidder does not want to buy the horse. He is to be allowed only one bid, and whatever that is the owner can top it by five dollars and the case is closed. The present rules in Canada at least furnish ample protection against the bidder who preys on the owners of winners. If any further protection is needed it is against the class of owners who enter their horses too cheaply in such races. All the ingenuity of the makers of new rules seems to be directed away from the general interest, whereas it is only the general interest that should prevail.—Francis Nelson in Toronto Globe.

DWYER ACCEPTS TIA JUANA APPOINTMENT.

San Diego, Cal., December 10.—Dick Dwyer, who for years has officiated as starter on various race tracks throughout the country, particularly in Kentucky and the east, has been named racing secretary and handicapper of the new Tia Juana race track. Mr. Dwyer, who now is in San Francisco, has wired his acceptance of a generous offer to join the official staff at the new plant, which positively will open New Year's day.

Announcement was made by the officials of the Jockey Club that three carloads of thoroughbreds have been shipped here from the Bowie track near Baltimore. Applications have been received from horsemen throughout the country for stable room, and it is the opinion of the club officials that more than three hundred horses will be at the track when the barrier goes up on opening day.

Other officials named are S. J. Rothert, formerly connected with the livestock department of the San Francisco Exposition, and, until racing was closed down, an officer of both the Denver and Reno racing associations. Rothert will act as clerk of scales and entry clerk; Robert Leighton, polo player and turfman of Vancouver, B. C., will fill the duties of paddock and patrol judge.

ASKS CONTROL OF EMPIRE CITY TRACK.

John F. Brennan, representing James Butler, owner of the Empire City race track, made a motion Wednesday for possession of the Empire City race course, which was awarded to the Empire City Association by a verdict of a jury in the Supreme Court, which decided that the National Fair and Exposition Association had broken its lease. Lee P. Davis, appearing for the National directors, opposed the motion and asked for a stay of execution for thirty days, as he said the defendants intended to appeal from the ejectment verdict to the Appellate Division. Justice Morschauer directed that briefs be submitted.

It is believed that a receiver will be appointed to take possession of the track pending the determination of an appeal and this will enable the Empire City Racing Association to have running races next year.

Incidents Attending the Running of the Most Famous Race of The World.

(Third Article)

Some curious circumstances occurred in 1845, when Mr. Gratwicke's Merry Monarch, scarcely named in the quotations, scored a fluky win through several of the most prominent competitors coming to grief before or in the race. The two favorites, Alarm and The Libel, savaged each other at the post, the former unseating his jockey, breaking away, and falling over the chains, the other being also injured. Then Frank Butler, on Pan, came down in the race, and threw out two of John Day's, one of which, however, Old England, managed to scramble home third, the chapter of accidents ending in the victory of the despised outsider.The race of 1846 is noticeable for its being the first in which time was taken, the record being 2:55, and the performers Mr. Gully's Pyrrhus the First and Sam Day, who were followed home by the subsequent St. Leger hero, Sir Tatton Sykes, the second Derby runner-up that afterwards earned such distinction, his predecessor in the same honors having been Lord Westminster's Launcelet—like Sir Tatton Sykes, another Whitehall crack. In this year, too, the owner of the Derby winner, Mr. Gully, landed the double event at Epsom, as he won the Oaks with Mediant, afterwards so well known in connection with Sir Joseph Hawley's stud, and as the dam of Beadsman, etc. Sam Day rode both winners—a rare slice of luck for a jockey up to that date, though in the next two years Sim Templeman eclipsed it by riding in two successive years both Derby and Oaks winners, viz., Cossack and Miami in 1847, and Surplice and Cymba in 1848, all for different owners.Rife with memories is this last Derby, for the winner (another of Touchstone's sons) was bred by Lord George Bentinck, who, with all his long devotion to and princely patronage of the sport, had never succeeded in winning a Derby, with such as him, of course, an object of particular ambition, and who now had the gratification to see the coup effected with one of his own horses, and a young nobleman, Lord Clifden, quite in his turf novitiate—his second season, in fact. Fortune has dealt many hard knocks, as we all know, to one and another of the votaries of the turf, but few so replete with bitterness as this experience of one of the finest sportsmen of the age, who, however, was spared a still unkindlier end, since before Surplice had added the St. Leger to his laurels, the crash had closed over his brilliant but unfortunate first master.In Surplice's year an alteration was made in the Derby course, the starting post being moved higher up, reducing the long, toilsome ascent of three-quarters of a mile before Tattenham Corner, and as "The Daily" remarks, "It is somewhat remarkable that the Templeman should have won the last Derby and Oaks on Cossack and Miami over it, and opened the new era with another double benefit on Surplice and Cymba." With the mention that this year the race for the first time obtained over 200 subscribers, and that Surplice was the first horse since Champion in 1800 that succeeded in breaking the spell of ill-luck that had attended the Derby winners at Doncaster the double event, we come next to his two rivals in the same distinction—Lord Eglinton's Flying Dutchman, the hero of 1849, and Lord Zetland's Voltigeur, his successor, than which few public horses were better known to the past generation of sportsmen.They spoke with pride of "The Dutchman's year," and the tremendous finish between Bay Middleton's staiding son, and the light-footed Askespur, who, skimming like a swallow over the heavy ground, held the bearer of the Montgomery tartan jacket almost to the last few strides, when Marlow, with the rarest patience and judgement, snatched the race on the post by a half length, and almost remarkably illustrated his own favorite saying, that "a race is never won by a yard and a half." It was a tight fit, indeed, as Marlow himself said when all was over. The second was a half-bred, which had the previous week at Bath run Pyrrhus to a half length, and over which Davis, a leviathan bookmaker, stood to win a huge sum.This was the most valuable Derby run for up to that time, the stakes amounting to $31,875.
A memorable and popular triumph was that of the Zetland "spots" and Voltigeur in 1850, scarcely expected though it was at least by South-Country sportsmen, for the starter at 16 to 1, and a few days before the race stood at 30's, what time the confidence of his stable and partisans was unbounded, and the spirit with which he was supported by the tenantry and household of Askesomething quite stimulating to read of. Scarcely in the palmist days of Whitehall and The Wizard did Yorkshire send so popular a champion to Epsom, and rarely was triumph more complete or more enthusiastically received as that of the gallant black, whose subsequent rivalry with his immediate predecessors in Epsom and Doncaster honors stand out to this day landmarks, so to speak, of turf history, but belong only collaterally to that of the race before us.A worthy successor to the Aske hero, though uncredited like him with dual sportsman in the South as Lord Zetland in the north, was in 1851 winner Sir Joseph Hawley's Teddington, on which Job Marson, like Templeman before him, and Frank Butler in the two following years, achieved a second successive victory, a feat previously accomplished only by Bill Scott once and twice by Robinson.
The feature of Teddington's year was the largest field that up to date had faced the starter for the race, the number (33) having been only once exceeded when in Caracacus' Derby thirty-four went to the post, and once approached by Cossack's field, which numbered thirty-five.A genuine surprise was witnessed on the Downs at Epsom in 1852, when the sturdy little Daniel O'Rourke scudded home through the wet and slush a 50 to 1 chance, securing for the Streamlin squire his third Derby, and foreshadowing the fame of his successor, the mighty Newmarket, Epsom and Doncaster and the laurels of the famous "black and gold" in the classic races. On his last appearance upon his native soil, a passing word may be recorded. This was in the sale ring at Grimston, where he and his predecessor in St. Leger honors, Stockwell, were sold, and when spirited speculation went among his local admirers as to which would fetch the most money, this distinction being achieved by the future champion of the turf, the sorer mortification still for the worshipper of "the West," he not only realized a thousand or so less than his rival, but was secured by a foreign purchaser, Yorkshire was grievously exercised in its mind when the idol was led away with the Count de Morny's string; but, looking at this day into the stud books at home and abroad, the country at large—and even Yorkshire, we should think would admit it—has reason to be devoutly thankful with the result of that day's sale, which preserved to our own soil the flower of our own stud.Passing onwards, we find little of permanent interest attaching to Andover's Derby of 1854, save that the winner was a fine-topped horse and a good goer, but was light in his back ribs, and developed a tendency to roaring. He was the second winner owned by the famous amateur "pug," Mr. Gully, who again threw in for a double event, having this year won the Two Thousand Guineas with The Hermit which here finished third. King Tom was the horse which split the pair, and for falling lame a week or so before the race, he might probably have won. As it was, he was undoubtedly a better horse than either, as his stud services amply attest.A far more notable and interesting performer was the 1855 winner, Wild Dayrell, whose antecedents were almost unique for a Derby candidate.
He was bred by a private gentleman at a quiet country house, trained by a private trainer and stud groom, partly in his own park and partly in an equally secluded grounds on Lord Craven's estate at Ashdown, and, until a few months before the Derby, had scarcely measured speed with a real race horse. More than this, he had actually been sold as a yearling by his breeder, Mr. Popham, who had never run a horse at any meeting and had no ambition of tempting fortune on the turf. His purchaser, Lord H. Lennox, upon trying him, became disenchanted of him and sent him up to Tattersall's where his breeder and late owner for-tuitously bought him back for half the sum he had sold him for and not a word about "contingencies." He was then put into training at his owner's place, but the price attending it, which he could not be kept in obscurity, nor his merits remain hidden from the world; and when seen at Epsom, his grand looks and commanding size and substance, added to his private reputation, made him start a better favorite than the Two Thousand Guineas winner, Lord of the Isles, which, like his predecessor, was put up with third place. The winner finished on a fine and lively run as to gallop right into the paddock hedge before he could be pulled up, and this, coupled with the hard state of the ground, may have led to his breakdown at Doncaster in the race for the Cup, and his retirement from the turf without achieving any additional distinction. At the stud he was fairly well left to his own excellent representatives in The Rake and Wild Oats.
